INSURANCE COSTS!!! The safety and costs of protecting our marae from unforeseen circumstances is astronomical.

Sometimes the costs outweigh the income. Its ridiculous. Our marae insurance is 11k, that's almost 1k a month, we are barely lucky to get that in income per year.

Needs to be addressed.

Tautoko Mori our Marae addressed this issue a couple of years ago..over a 10 year period we have paid $130k in insurance, we are an lwi made up of 22 hapu and we decided we are not giving another dollar, if we were in the circumstance of needing to rebuild we know our lwi will come and tautoko us as would we if the shoe was on the other foot

Our marae isn't even insured and it's used constantly 🙄

That's not good. we should ask for a $5 koha from all working whanau to assist with insurance.

we can afford it! If you compare it with what you pay for house and contents per annum, the cost seems appropriate.

Doctoral kaupapa

- Aotearoa New Zealand economic history:
 - public interventions
 - tūraru
 - community resilience
- Data science for mana motuhake
 - DigitalNZ project
 - Indigenous data sovereignty

Doctoral whakaaro so far

- How has the lack of public support for marae risk sharing impacted resilience? Can we estimate, roughly, the replacement costs which would have been socialized?
 - What types of tino rangatiratanga systems have been created in response? How do these compare? How do Civil Defence Centre responsibilities play in?
- How do whare on customary Māori land fare when compared to general title homes in our disaster risk systems?
